

A literature review is a written report that summarizes existing research on a topic. The purpose of a literature review is to gain an understanding of the topic and its research methods

A Review Of Employee Management Systems Information

Contains example literature reviews, referencing, and an APA reference generator

Design and implementation of a web based human resource

Contains a literature review of similar work successfully implemented by organizations like the Orange HRM group

A THEORETICAL REVIEW ON HRIS IMPLEMENTATION

Contains an exploratory study with the available literature study and other research

Implementation of the Human Resources Information Systems

Contains a literature review by Nagendra and Deshpande (2014)

Buzkan (2016): A study that presents a literature review related to HRIS and its importance for Viktor Nagorny orangehrm

Nagendra and Deshpande (2014): A literature review that studies HRIS in HR orangehrm.org

Katumba Mike: A final year report that includes a review of similar systems, including OrangeHRM